ZUTA'S MURDER WAS FINAL BLOW

Days of Gangs.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(UN)—George "Bugs" Moran, who has fought a spectacular battle with "Scarface" Al Capone for control of Chicago's liquor traffic, was understood today to have abdicated leadership of his north side gang.

Ted Newberry, dapper young gunman, who quit Moran's clan for Capone's shortly before the murder of Alfred J. Linde, Chicago Tribune reporter, set up headquarters at the Lantern cafe and announced he was "running things up north now."

Capone thus appeared to have established himself as dictator of all Chicago's gangland—a feat no one has been able to do since the gay pre-war days of "Big Jim" Colosimo. Even Colosimo was not so powerful.

Moran held on as a prominent leader, in fact, grew to be a more powerful one, for a year and a half after seven of his henchmen were massacred on St. Valentine's Day in 1929.

His downfall came as a natural sequence to the death of Jack Zuta, who shared the chieftainship with him and the Aiello brothers.

Both events were credited by the underworld to the prowess of Newberry, who was said to have split with Moran because of a disagreement with Zuta.

Zuta had called a session of north side minor chiefs sometime before the murder of Reporter Jake Linde, on June 9, announced that "times were hard" and that "more dough" had to be turned in.

Newberry and his assistant, Benny Bennett, walked out on the session in a huff. Bennett disappeared mysteriously and his family and friends were informed by grapevine methods, that he was dead. Newberry himself was wounded and left town for a time.

Then he returned and began threatening Zuta by about the same time Zuta was killed. Zuta, underworld sources said, had killed because he believed the reporter kept poking about the same time Zuta was killed. CAPTAIN VANISHES FROM SHIP AT SEA

No Clue Found to Disappearance of Fruit Line Ship's Master.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The steamer San Gil, of the United Fruit Company's fleet, docked here today without her captain, Leslie E. Large, of London and Boston, who disappeared sometime in the early morning of August 1, while the steamer was en route from Havana, Cuba, to Castilla, Honduras.

Officials were unable to explain the mysterious disappearance of Large, who had been first officer of the Calumet, flagship of the great fruit line, and who was made acting captain of the San Gil as the result of the disappearance of the great ship's papers gave any clue to a reason for going overboard.

Large was 32. He was married a little more than a year ago to the daughter of J. O. Posen, agent for the United Fruit Company in Cuba. There were no children. On the day of Large's disappearance, Mrs. Large sailed from Boston for Havana, Cuba, for a vacation with her father.

The San Gil was brought back to port by Willis Ivans, first officer.

Communism Gains Steadily in China

Armies Menacing Central Provinces Are Spreading
Red Doctrines and Are Well Equipped.

The Chinese rebellion against the Nanking government in Hunan and adjoining provinces are communists, well organized and not mere untrained bandit bands, Randall Gould, United News Bureau manager at Shanghai, writes in the following article.

Gould, who has lived in the Far East for ten years, points out that the communists have hoisted red flags, attacked landowners, spread propaganda against capitalism, confiscated property and otherwise given evidence that their leaders are men who understand communism, though the soldiers themselves may not.

BY RANDALL GOULD,
United News Staff Correspondent.
SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 10.—(UN)—Extreme anti-communist measures continued today at Hankow, metropolis in central China, where 16 communist agitators were beheaded by the authorities.

The executions brought the total to 46 in the last week. The beheadings, gruesome affairs, were held with little ceremony not far from the Hankow Race Club, a spacious foreign country club on the outskirts of the city.

These drastic measures were considered necessary by the Nanking government authorities in control at Hankow because of the communist menace in central China. The communists have changed from loose hordes of bandit raiders to an apparently well-organized army of at least 10,000 men.

Real Communists.
The fact that they are highly "red" is a matter of fact, but the fact that they have distributed communist propaganda against private property, downed soviet red flags and in other ways indicated the government has more than a haphazard sort of bandit-like direction.

Hankow, considered fairly safe from their invasion, nevertheless is in the path of the communist push, and martial law prevails.

Changsha, capital of Hunan province, looted and burned, was reported to have been taken by the communists once more in control and restoring order, reports from there said.

Women were advised to postpone their marriages, and the government more nearly normal in Hunan and south-central China generally. Many women are attached to the Presbyterian mission, the Yale-China Mission college, and other educational institutions in the missions or businesses stationed at Changsha.

Reds Greatest Problem.
The Chinese communists were reported moving northward toward the Yangtze, but the anticipated outbreaks at Kuling and Kiating had not occurred. However, on the northward side of the Yangtze river, were safer than these cities, on the south bank.

The activities of the communists, however, south of the Yangtze for the past ten days has become the major Chinese problem. It overshadows the political civil war on the northern front and has compelled new alignments and tactics among the present leaders.

The communist generals have gathered an "army" together of several divisions, and a figure being placed at 10,000 in the Hunan action. They are believed to be led by General Peng Tehhui, chief leader of the "fifth" army.

GEORGIA YOUTH, 14, SLAYS STEPFATHER

Tells Officers He Shot
To Defend Mother, Beaten
With Lead Pipe.

NASHVILLE, Ga., Aug. 10.—(AP)—George Thompson, slender youth of only 14 years, is in jail here charged with the murder of his stepfather, Chess Taylor, 42, Sunday morning in the New river district about 10 miles west of here.

Taylor was shot in the left side, just below the heart, with a shotgun loaded with birdshot. He died instantly.

The shooting was said to have taken place during a family row, Taylor being accused by his stepson of forcing his attentions upon the latter's sister, Louise, 16.

In the quarrel this morning, according to the boy, Mrs. Chess Taylor, formerly Mrs. Ida Thompson, stuck up for the girl, whereupon Taylor is alleged to have proceeded to beat her. The boy says he ordered his stepfather to stop. Taylor then attempted to hit him, the boy says, whereupon he grasped the shotgun and opened fire on his stepfather.

"My stepfather for some time has been forcing his attentions upon my sister," said the boy in jail Sunday afternoon. "He would hug her things when she would hug and kiss him. When she would not caress him he would tear up her things."

"This morning my sister resisted these attentions and when mother tried to make him stop he jumped on her and was beating her with a lead pipe. I told him to stop and he flew at me. I shot him in the side."

The young boy said that his stepfather had been unduly attentive to his sister for the last two years and had beaten his sister and mother on several occasions.

Immediately following the shooting the sheriff was notified of the case and went to the home and arrested the boy, who made no effort to escape.

Thompson is a wee bit of a boy, weighing less than 100 pounds. In sound and healthy, his officers of the shooting and of incidents leading up to the tragedy.

TOBACCO GROWERS, AGRICULTURISTS MEET HERE TODAY

Conditions of Both Tobacco, Cotton Crops To Be Discussed; Peak of Bright Leaf Selling Seen

Whether the southern farmer shall continue to face the forlorn prospects of producing tobacco, cotton and other major crops at an actual loss compared with his investment of labor, fertilizer and cultivation, is expected to be the gist of the question to be met today when commissioners of agriculture from 12 southern states, together with bankers and businessmen, gather at 11 o'clock this morning at the Ansley hotel.

The meeting, outgrowth of the financially disastrous tobacco season of Georgia planters, was called to meet here after the attention of the entire country had been arrested by the protests of Georgia growers who, after a yield of the greatest bright leaf crop in the state's history, found bids of buyers so low that in a majority of sections of the tobacco belt they represented a financial loss to the producer.

To stem this condition, appeals were made in congress for federal aid for the Georgia tobacco producers, but in as much as it was found that the growers were not affiliated with a co-operative marketing association the federal authorities declared that they could not intervene in the matter of prices offered.

Harry D. Wilson, of Louisiana, president of the Southern Association of Agricultural Commissioners, leading in the movement to get southern farm heads together for the purpose of threshing out a means of solving the problem, has announced that the commissioners will not confine their investigation to tobacco alone, but likewise will take steps to protect the growers of cotton in the south against a "beating-down" system of buyers.

It is not unlikely that the meeting will endeavor to take some steps to obtain emergency aid from the federal government.

THEATER OWNERS OF S. E. MEET HERE

Lee De Forest, Charles Pettijohn Among Prominent Speakers.

Theater owners from all parts of the southeast gathered in Atlanta Sunday for the second annual convention of the Southeastern Theater Owners' Association, which will hold its first business session at the roof garden of the Ansley hotel at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Nationally-known leaders in the amusement profession who will address the convention during its sessions on Monday and Tuesday will include Dr. Lee De Forest, of the General Talking Pictures Corporation, who will talk on "The Future of Sound and Television," at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Charles Pettijohn, general counsel for the Motion Picture Producers' Association, will talk on "The New Contract and Other Things," on Monday afternoon.

G. E. Ricker, president, will be in the chair when the sessions open this morning, while Horace Russell, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will deliver an address of welcome, with Willard O. Patterson, district manager of the Public Theater Corporation, making the response.

Maurice "Red" Kahn, editor of Motion Picture News, will speak at the morning session on "The Future of the Independent, if Any," while "Theater Operation" will be discussed by Montgomery Hill, of the Public Saver Theater, North Carolina.

Speakers at the Monday afternoon session, which will commence at 8 o'clock, will include Mack Jackson, of Alexander City, Ala., on "Film Buying," and E. L. Cole, secretary of the Atlanta Film Chamber of Commerce, on "The Operation of the Credit Committee."

The annual banquet will be held at 8 o'clock Monday night at the Ansley hotel with Alpha Fowler, of Atlanta, as toastmaster.

Registration of convention delegates took place Sunday. On Sunday afternoon delegates and their wives were guests at the Keith Georgia theater at a private screening of "Dixiana," a production featuring Constance Bennett, with Bob Daniels, Bert Wheeler, Bob Woolsey, Everett Marshall and other stars.

At 8 o'clock Sunday night they witnessed "Common Clay," Fox Film production featuring Constance Bennett, at the Fox theater, where refreshments were also served.

AFRIDI TRIBESMEN ATTACK BRITISH NEAR PESHAWAR

All-Day Battle Rages at India Frontier City With Victory Undecided; Casualties Heavy.

PESHAWAR, India, Aug. 10.—(UN)—British troops battled with Afridi tribesmen almost in the outskirts of Peshawar on the northwest frontier of India this afternoon. The battle was still in progress as night fell.

The Afridi advance guard had penetrated the extensive orchards near Peshawar, where they lay hidden during the day.

A party of Poonja horsemen (a native Indian cavalry unit) patrolling the orchard area, rode past and the Afridi opened fire. Several troops fell from their saddles at the first volley.

The Afridi warriors moved rapidly toward the military supply depot as the Poonja horsemen fell back. The supply depot is a stone's throw from the Peshawar railway station.

British cavalry galloped to the scene and attacked the bold tribesmen. Airplanes joined in the battle, bombing the insurgents.

The crash of the airplane bombs and the rattle of the rifles could be heard plainly in Peshawar. Martial law prevailed.

The Afridis were crossing the frontier continually during the daytime and hiding in caves five or six miles from Peshawar. During the night they were engaged in shooting tactics, attempting to pick off the unwary.

A message from the Afridis, who previously had been in war, because of the threatened trouble, is now being urged to raise an arm, for a simultaneous attack on Peshawar, Risalpur and Chert.

Indications were tonight, as the fighting subsided into desultory sniping, that the Afridis were maneuvering preparatory to an attack on November 30, miles east of Peshawar. All passenger and freight traffic on the Peshawar-Nowshera railway was suspended, apparently to facilitate troop movements.

The attack and battle today was the continuation of fighting which began with a daylight attack by the Afridi yesterday. It marked the second day's fighting with the fierce and well armed Afridi warriors from the unsheltered territory between India and Afghanistan, aimed at Peshawar as the first major objective.

Estimates placed the Afridi forces at 10,000 men.

All the telephone wires running out of Peshawar were cut last night. The usual telegraph lines were cut by Afridi scouting bands.

A message is going out through the Kohat pass by a telegraph wire installed for emergencies following the uprising in 1923.

Six Indians in the Poonja cavalry unit were reported shot by the Afridis. Two Afridi dead were left at the mobilization barracks when the tribesmen retreated after their fight yesterday. Three others were found dead at the base of the city wall.

The Afridis sought to capture the headquarters of the British civil and military administration of northwest frontier province. It is one of the boldest exploits of these fierce tribesmen.

The audacity of the attack has caused concern, some fearing the warriors may have more strength than indicated. They have sought to gain allies among other tribes in the wild, rocky mountainous region.

Peshawar is a city of about 100,000 persons. It is a strong frontier outpost, defended by about 15,000 British and native troops.

An armored train and another brigade of troops were reported being rushed from Lahore to the defense of the city.

Hoover Celebrates Birthday Quietly

ORANGE, Va., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Amid the quietness of his mountain camp, President Hoover today observed his fifty-sixth birthday in simple fashion.

The occasion was marked only by a birthday cake with 56 candles at dinner and by the presentation of gifts to the president by Mrs. Hoover and other guests at the week-end retreat.

It was a typical Hoover birthday, however, for he has long been opposed to ceremony upon such occasions.

KING GEORGE SENDS HIS REGARDS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—King George of England today felicitated President Hoover on his fifty-sixth birthday. He sent the following message to the White House:

"It is with great pleasure, Mr. President, that I offer you on the occasion of your birthday my warmest felicitations together with my sincere good wishes for your continued health and happiness."

Start on Work Would Ease Unemployment Here, Harris' Letter Says

In an effort to relieve in some measure the unemployment situation in Atlanta, Senator William J. Harris has requested Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, to authorize the beginning at an early date of construction work on the city's new $2,875,000 postoffice and federal building.

Knowledge of the Georgia solon's action was gained Sunday from the copy of a letter dispatched Saturday by Senator Harris to the treasury head, in which he characterizes the continued postponement of the new postoffice construction as "unreasonable delay."

The start at an early date of such work, the senator pointed out, would tend greatly to lessen the stricture of local unemployment by giving to hundreds of men jobs in the clearing away of the old buildings on the downtown property purchased by the government and the building of the large new structure authorized by congress, for which appropriations long since have been approved.

Calling the secretary's attention to the policy of President Hoover to begin all outstanding governmental contract work as soon as possible with a view to relieving the unemployment problem throughout the country, the senator set forth the point that Atlanta is the principal city in the southeast and that in his opinion delay in beginning construction work on the new federal building was without reason.

Senator Harris' letter, dated Saturday, follows:

"Honorable Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Mr. Mellon:

"I have several times called at your department urging that work begin on the Atlanta postoffice building at the first day possible. As you know, the money is already appropriated and this work would give employment to a great many people. The president's policy has been to start all work of this kind as soon as possible to relieve the unemployment situation. Atlanta is the principal city and distributing point for all matters in the southeast, and it seems to me that there is unreasonable delay in beginning the construction of the building.

"I sincerely hope that you may give directions that work begin the first day possible.

"Yours very truly,
"WILLIAM J. HARRIS."

Senator Harris expressed his belief that such a move would be a real head start for the city's jobless men. He said that a large number of workmen will be necessary by reason of the fact that the newly purchased postoffice site lies in the downtown area thickly situated with antiquated buildings which must be torn down before the new structure's foundations can be laid and work on it started.

The new $2,875,000 federal building authorized for Atlanta will be located on the northern portion of the block bounded by Spring, Hunter, Forsyth and Mitchell streets. It will be an imposing structure, rising at least five stories above the sidewalk level, and will have its front on Spring street.

Actual dimensions of the new building will be 300 feet on Spring street by 428 feet on Hunter, embracing approximately 127,600 square feet.

U. S.-To-Japan Fliers Down at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Bob Wark and Edward J. Brown, Seattle aviators, were forced down here today on the first leg of their flight from Tacoma to Tokyo, on a proposed four-stop flight to Japan, hoping to reach White Horse within 12 hours.

With the exception of the gas lines, the motor and ship functioned perfectly, the fliers said. They said they would take off tomorrow morning for White Horse.

CROPS DECLARED TOO FAR GONE

Hoover Continues To Plan Method of Relief
But Doubts Seriousness of Situation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(UN)—The midwest's prayers for rain were answered in most parts of the drought area over the week-end, but in many instances the rain was too late to save crops.

Temperatures dropped precipitately, however, and refreshing breezes replaced the heat which for more than a week had caused suffering between the Rocky Mountains and the Atlantic seaboard.

The rains varied from one-quarter to three-quarters of an inch in scattered parts of Missouri, Michigan and Ohio and were heaviest in northern Illinois and Indiana and in Kentucky.

The weather bureau for the central area in Chicago predicted no more rain until the end of the week but said that lower temperatures would prevail for another two days.

Although the populace generally welcomed the relief from hot weather there was little hope for the farmers. Federal and unofficial agencies which moved to Washington to deal with the drought crisis pictured the situation in grave terms.

J. E. Houston, Kansas City grain man and board of trade member, wired the bureau asking all possible speed in obtaining drought relief. "Every minute counts," Houston said. "Farmers are facing economic ruin. The death by the red tape in the hands of the government."

Governor W. H. Adams, of Colorado, on behalf of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce, offered the government pasture land sufficient to graze a million head of cattle. He said the cattle are being rushed to market to prevent them from famishing in other parts of the live stock country. Colorado pastures are said to be richer than ever.

With the prospect of higher meat prices in the autumn as a result of the drought, midwestern housewives are beginning to see the drought's effect on prices of fresh vegetables and fruits. The level of truck farm products was said to have advanced sharply. The scarcity of sweet corn, potatoes, beans and peas, lettuce was noted in the Chicago market, although truck farmers in this area have fared better than those of the more arid regions in recent weeks.

DROUGHT IS BROKEN IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The heat and drought ended today for the metropolitan area but their results lingered on as merchants predicted rising prices for vegetables and milk, due to the up-state shortage.

The Weather LOCAL THUNDERSHOWERS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Forecast:
Georgia—Local thunderstorms Monday and probably Tuesday; gentle showers and west winds. Lettuce and fruit. The level of truck farm products was said to have advanced sharply. The scarcity of sweet corn, potatoes, beans and peas, lettuce was noted in the Chicago market, although truck farmers in this area have fared better than those of the more arid regions in recent weeks.

Kentucky—Fair Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy, followed by showers in afternoon or at night; not much change in temperature.
Tennessee—Partly cloudy, slightly cooler in central and east portions Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy, followed by showers in afternoon or at night.
West Virginia—Fair, continued cool Monday; Tuesday increasing cloudiness, probably followed by showers in afternoon or at night.
Louisiana and Mississippi—Partly cloudy, local thunderstorms in south portion Monday and Tuesday.
Alabama and Extreme Northwest Florida—Partly cloudy, local thunderstorms Monday and Tuesday.
Arkansas and Oklahoma—Partly cloudy and unsettled Monday and Tuesday; cooler in north portion Monday.
Texas—Partly cloudy, scattered thunderstorms on the coast Monday and Tuesday.
West Texas—Generally fair Monday and Tuesday.

ALLEGED FUR BURGLAR IS STILL UNCONSCIOUS

Slight Improvement Noted in Condition of Man Thought To Be William Eary.

Still listed on Grady hospital records as "unknown," a man thought by police to be William E. Eary, indicted by a Fulton grand jury Friday for burglary of the Regenstein Company store on June 11, lay unconscious on his cot Sunday night, his condition termed "serious" by attendants.

The man was found Saturday morning at the foot of a freight elevator shaft of the Beck & Gregg Hardware Company in an unconscious condition. Both legs were broken and his skull fractured in five places. A basement window which had been forced gave police the clue as to how he gained entrance.

The supposed burglar had not regained consciousness Sunday night, but detectives were confident that he is Eary as finger-print classifications and a roguish gallery portrait tally with the injured man. Positive identification cannot be made, however, until actual finger-prints arrive from Savannah, where he recently was held in jail.

Sunday the unidentified man's temperature went as high as 104 and two-fifths degrees, but physicians stated that some slight improvement in his condition could be noted late Sunday night. Little hope for his ultimate recovery was held out, however.

BOOTLEG WARFARE FLARES, 3 WOUNDED

stood a friend, Harry Allen, and nearby lingered a bystander whose name later was learned as "Curly" Poss.

Sedan Drives Up. A large sedan, bearing six men, drove up in true gangster style, according to Jones' version. One of the men, he said, he immediately recognized as Jack Byars. Another who got out of the car and came up to where he was parked, he said, was Charlie Lancaster, while a third, the car he recognized as Harley Foster.

"Lancaster came up," Jones told police, "and I got out."

"We're going to take you for a ride," Lancaster told me, Jones narrated, "and I said, 'What am I supposed to do—bust out crying?'"

He said he could see Foster in the other car and that Foster was pointing a .45 automatic at him, the hammer cocked. He said he slid his hand over the side of his own car, and reached his automatic in the car pocket but before he could draw it Lancaster sprang aside and Foster opened up with his gun.

He was struck in the chest, his left arm shattered, and as he fell to the sidewalk, he said, Allen also was struck by a fusillade that spattered from the guns of other members of the "firing squad." Poss likewise was struck, but neither he nor Allen was seriously hurt, Poss being hit in the ankle while Allen's wound was shallow flesh injury. Both Jones said, made their escape from the scene.

Pedestrians Seek Cover. A few early morning pedestrians immediately ran to cover. During the hail of bullets several windows were smashed and a number of shots were imbedded in near-by buildings. A hurried call was sent to police headquarters but by the time emergency patrolmen reached the scene only Jones was there.

Jones told police that he expected further warfare between rival gangs. He said the trouble was caused by the fact that about a month ago Foster had been hijacked of about 27 cases of liquor and that he had offered Lancaster $50 a week and 25 percent of the profits if he would "put the finger" on the man who had hijacked him. It was Jones' opinion that in order to collect this bounty Lancaster had "ribbed," or accused him to Foster, who set out to get his revenge in almost Chicago fashion.

Jones likewise said he had been informed that a former boxer, known to police as "Pee-Wee" Burns, was to be the next man "put on the spot."

Chief Poole said information coming to him from various sources indicated that Foster's liquor had been hijacked by others who disposed of it to Jones, who did not know it was stolen.

Plans to Talk to Jones. "I received information this morning shortly after the shooting that Jones had not hijacked Foster's liquor himself and did not know that it had been hijacked, though he did buy it," Chief Poole said. "As soon as his confession permits I am going to have him talk with him myself and see if I cannot get to the bottom of the whole deal."

Chief Poole also said he would detail as many more men from his department as possible to the liquor squad in an attempt to smash the bootleg traffic.

"So many men are entering the liquor business in Atlanta that the competition has become too keen for those who have made it their racket for a long time," Chief Poole said.

"We have had scores of reports of hijacking on the country roads north of town morning after morning. None of them was official, of course, because the hijacked liquor runner cannot say anything to us or the county police about it. He has to take his medicine and look out for himself."

A man well-informed with the situation here told me a few days ago that one load of liquor was hijacked no less than four times before it finally reached the city. The first liquor runner is said to have lost his cargo north of Stone Mountain, hijacked it back from those who held him up only to lose it again to two other mobs who were lying in wait closer to town."

THOMASVILLE COUPLE HURT IN AUTO WRECK

NASHVILLE, Ga., Aug. 10.—(AP) Miss Estelle Johnson, 18, and Johnson Joiner, 21, both of Thomasville, are in the Quitman hospital as a result of an automobile accident that occurred about ten miles below here Saturday afternoon.

Miss Johnson received a broken arm and chest injuries. Though serious doctors say she is in a critical condition with probable internal injuries.

Mr. Joiner suffered a broken ankle and a general shakeup.

As told by Mr. Joiner, driver of the car, the road had been dragged and sand was in the middle of the road which caused the car to skid and turn over, pinning both of the occupants under it. They were found by a passing motorist, H. B. Dinkins, who had to extricate them from the wreckage. He brought them to Nashville where medical aid was given.

The girl's parents were notified and an ambulance from Quitman carried both to a hospital in that city. The young couple had visited here during the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Joiner and were returning home.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The president of the United States Saturday extended a hand of mercy to a prisoner in the Bibb county jail.

W. W. Jackson, of Round Oak, Ga., was given his freedom on order of President Hoover, who signed a pardon in the man's favor. Jackson was sentenced on May 6 to serve six months for violating the national prohibition act. For some time he has been in ill health, and during the last several days he has been confined in the Macon hospital.

Jailer T. J. McCombs said it was the first release on pardon here in several years.

WOMEN DEMAND WORLD DISARM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A world-wide demand for "total universal disarmament" was sought tonight by the 26 national sections of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in soliciting signatures for a petition sent to members of the organization throughout the world.

The petition forwarded to American members of the league was printed in English, French and German, with blank spaces for 10 signatures. In the directions to members on the reverse side, it was urged that signers be asked for "a dollar and, if not that, a dime."

American headquarters of the league here announced that Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, international president of the league, was the first American to attach her signature to the petition.

Among those abroad who were said to have signed the petition were Professor Albert Einstein, the Countess of Oxford and Asquith, Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the British chancellor of the exchequer; John Galsworthy, the writer, and others.

"In spite of the official renunciation of war, grave danger to peace still threatens," the petition stated. "Will the peoples allow their governments to prepare their destruction? Let them unite and demand world disarmament."

The petition asserted that "whole populations are in danger," and enumerated methods of destruction including poison gas and incendiary bombs.

In conclusion, the petition requested the governments of the world to take necessary steps to achieve world disarmament.

PARIS POLICE Launch Drive On Style Thieves

PARIS, Aug. 10.—(UN)—A city-wide police investigation of "fashion thefts" climaxed the recent winter style showings and resulted in the arrest for questioning Saturday of many women copyists, including an American.

Spurred by repeated complaints from Parisian fashion houses that their creations were being "stolen" by expert copyists working for New York firms, the police visited the apartments of Miss Caroline Davis, 28, who said she was born in East Orange, N. J., and of a number of others, including French women of noble birth, Miss Davis and Miss Jeanne Helon Olive were the first arrested.

The investigation revealed a complicated but highly efficient system by which police said the copyists were able to provide New York firms with the newest Paris modes in violation of French laws protecting the creations of French fashion experts.

Police said they found a collection of assorted samples and a secret correspondence code in possession of Miss Davis and Miss Olive.

The first action aroused fashion houses to demand stricter enforcement of the laws, declaring that the present conditions nullify the efforts of creators and destroy initiative and the prosperity of legitimate stylists. The police said their investigations showed the copyists visited style shows and made sketches which were sent speedily to New York.

Gunman's Wild Shot Kills Schoolgirl

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—An 11-year-old school girl was killed today by a stray bullet from the pistol of a gunman shooting it out with a rival in the heart of Harlem's Little Italy.

The gunmen emptied their weapons at each other and then, apparently unscathed, fled in opposite directions.

The victim, Sandina Cammarato, was in a hallway in East 144th street when the bullet struck her.

The shooting terrorized the neighborhood and police who arrived shortly afterward were unable to get a description of the gunmen or locate anyone who had witnessed the girl's death. Shattered windows across the street and a bullet hole in a parked car testified to the poor marksmanship of the men.

BARNESVILLE CHURCH OPENS NEW ANNEX

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 10.—The Methodist church of Barnesville opened its new annex Sunday morning. The building is the realization of a dream, which for years the Methodists of Barnesville have been looking forward to. The Women's Missionary Society, various Sunday school classes and men's organizations have made money in different ways and put it into a building fund for the structure.

Sunday morning, the Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor, and the Sunday school superintendent, W. D. Williams, stood at the entrance to welcome members and visitors.

At 11:11 o'clock (C. S. T.) tonight Jackson and O'Brien had been in the air 406 hours and were within 58 hours of the Hunters' record.

Experts said tonight they had been unable to detect any lessening of the plane's endurance power.

After sweltering for days, the pilots today complained of the cold weather. Early today the fliers descended to a low altitude to ride out a mild rainstorm. The pilots apparently chose to fly low rather than labor the plane's motor by going above the storm.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 10. (AP)—Transcontinental Air Transport officials here said they were informed from Los Angeles tonight that Captain Frank Hawks will take off from Glendale, Calif., at 2 a. m. (M. S. T.) tomorrow on a flight which he hopes will establish a new west-east transcontinental speed record.

J., and of a number of others, including French women of noble birth, Miss Davis and Miss Jeanne Helon Olive were the first arrested.

The investigation revealed a complicated but highly efficient system by which police said the copyists were able to provide New York firms with the newest Paris modes in violation of French laws protecting the creations of French fashion experts.

Police said they found a collection of assorted samples and a secret correspondence code in possession of Miss Davis and Miss Olive.

The first action aroused fashion houses to demand stricter enforcement of the laws, declaring that the present conditions nullify the efforts of creators and destroy initiative and the prosperity of legitimate stylists. The police said their investigations showed the copyists visited style shows and made sketches which were sent speedily to New York.

Gunman's Wild Shot Kills Schoolgirl

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—An 11-year-old school girl was killed today by a stray bullet from the pistol of a gunman shooting it out with a rival in the heart of Harlem's Little Italy.

The gunmen emptied their weapons at each other and then, apparently unscathed, fled in opposite directions.

The victim, Sandina Cammarato, was in a hallway in East 144th street when the bullet struck her.

The shooting terrorized the neighborhood and police who arrived shortly afterward were unable to get a description of the gunmen or locate anyone who had witnessed the girl's death. Shattered windows across the street and a bullet hole in a parked car testified to the poor marksmanship of the men.

BARNESVILLE CHURCH OPENS NEW ANNEX

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 10.—The Methodist church of Barnesville opened its new annex Sunday morning. The building is the realization of a dream, which for years the Methodists of Barnesville have been looking forward to. The Women's Missionary Society, various Sunday school classes and men's organizations have made money in different ways and put it into a building fund for the structure.

Sunday morning, the Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor, and the Sunday school superintendent, W. D. Williams, stood at the entrance to welcome members and visitors.

At 11:11 o'clock (C. S. T.) tonight Jackson and O'Brien had been in the air 406 hours and were within 58 hours of the Hunters' record.

Experts said tonight they had been unable to detect any lessening of the plane's endurance power.

After sweltering for days, the pilots today complained of the cold weather. Early today the fliers descended to a low altitude to ride out a mild rainstorm. The pilots apparently chose to fly low rather than labor the plane's motor by going above the storm.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 10. (AP)—Transcontinental Air Transport officials here said they were informed from Los Angeles tonight that Captain Frank Hawks will take off from Glendale, Calif., at 2 a. m. (M. S. T.) tomorrow on a flight which he hopes will establish a new west-east transcontinental speed record.

THE FORD 1½-TON PANEL DELIVERY

THROUGHOUT the country, Ford trucks are serving a large number of businesses, under the widest possible variety of conditions.

Whether delivering merchandise promptly for smart retail shops, or moving gravel by the cubic yard, the Ford truck gives value far in excess of the price. It is a sturdy truck, always ready and able to hurry a load to its destination . . . and to do it at low cost.

The Ford truck has a good engine. It develops its full 40 horsepower at 2200 r.p.m., which is but a medium engine speed.

Wear on moving parts is thus reduced, and many miles added to the life of the truck.

Because the fuel, lubrication, ignition, electrical and cooling systems are simple in design, their operation is highly reliable.

Bearings and reciprocating parts are held to close limits of accuracy in size and weight, by means of precision-gages in the hands of expert workmen. For example, the diameter of piston-pins is held within three ten-thousandths of an inch. The result is decreased wear, longer life, and improved performance.

Other features of the truck, which increase its ability to serve you both long and well, are the 4-speed transmission, which provides a wide range of speed and power; the new rear axle, which has a spiral bevel gear with straddle-mounted pinion; the option of two gear-ratios; the larger brakes; the heavier front axle and spring; and the dual rear wheels available at small additional cost.

Standard bodies are the panel, stake, and platform types, all of which are sturdy and good-looking, with ample loading space. Both the open and enclosed cabs are available with the stake and platform bodies. These bodies are mounted on the chassis with 131½-inch wheelbase. For carrying loads of greater bulk, a chassis with 157-inch wheelbase can be supplied. Go to your Ford dealer today, and examine this truck in detail.

"My friends tell me I'm the picture of health since taking Sargon and I sure feel like a different man," recently stated J. S. Purcell, well-known Street Railway operator for the Georgia Power Co., who resides on Route 2, Macon Drive, Atlanta.

J. S. PURCELL.

"I was in mighty bad health for about three years ago. I couldn't find a medicine to get at the source of my troubles until I started on Sargon. I suffered with indigestion after every meal and sometimes I'd have attacks I'd have to give up my run on the street car and go home and go to bed. Then on top of all this I had to contend with constipation all the time and rheumatic pains in my back, arms and legs at times had me where I could hardly move."

"I've taken four bottles of Sargon, along with two bottles of Sargon Pills, and I'm entirely free of rheumatic pains, indigestion, and all my other troubles. I gained back the twelve pounds I lost, and eating regular man's size meals like I am now, along with plenty of sound sleep, keeps me feeling fit all the time."

"Those Sargon Pills overcame my constipation entirely and they didn't upset my stomach or cause any other trouble. The Sargon treatment is wonderful and I'll be glad to talk to anybody in person about these two medicines."

Sargon may be obtained in Jacobs' Pharmacies.—(adv.)

TOBACCO GROWERS MEET HERE TODAY

eral government regardless of the lack of affiliation with co-operative associations, some of the commissioners have indicated.

Widespread reports from the Georgia tobacco belt indicate that this week will see the peak of the selling of an improved quality of tobacco.

The bright leaf market closed the second week of the 1930 auction season Friday with improved price conditions and a better quality of leaf.

Much interest is centered on the second week's official report of sales and average prices on the market which will be issued today by the state department of agriculture, and which is expected to show an increase over the first week.

Tobacco growers and agriculturists generally throughout the state will watch with interest the developments expected to follow the meeting here.

Reports from the different Georgia warehouses said the average price for last week would be at least three cents higher than those of the opening week on at least several of the important markets. The official average for the first week was 10.55 cents per pound.

Much optimism prevailed over the belt last week, with sales on many of the larger warehouses setting a new record.

Douglas and Tifton, two of the three largest auctions, reported an improved price. The average for the week at Douglas was $11.51 per hundred pounds. Farmers sold 5,538,010 pounds during the five days for $637,451.51. Gross sales at Tifton were 3,429,956 pounds for $435,982, or an average of $12.71 per hundred.

Thomasville officials said that receipts at the close of the second week were 33.13 per cent ahead of 1929. The prices were low, but farmers received enough to bring them some profit. A new record for sales was established at Adel when 1,250,000 pounds were sold at prices better than the opening week.

Boaters at Lakewood Pass 391st-Hour Mark

More than 150 hours beyond the former world's outdoor motor endurance record, Joe Logan and M. L. Trammell continued to cruise smoothly late Sunday night for 16 days on the lake at Lakewood park. Their present goal is a new endurance record for all gasoline engines. Their total at midnight Sunday was 391 hours.

Several thousand Atlantans visited Lakewood Sunday afternoon and night and encouraged the pilots to continue their cruise until the motor ceases to function.

Both Logan and Trammell were interested to learn that several west coast radio stations are giving daily accounts of their progress on the lake.

Alabama's Primary Center Of Week's Political Stage

Arkansas Voters Also Will Go to Polls on Tuesday; Administration
Test in Nebraska.

BY MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACEY,
United News Staff Correspondent.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 10.—(UN)—Two more southern states will settle important primary election contests this week. They are Alabama, where Senator J. Thomas Heflin, although not even on the ticket, is the big issue, and Arkansas, where Senator Joseph T. Robinson expects to stage off handily an attack made up on him on the grounds that he is a "friend of the interests" and particularly of the power interests.

Both Alabama and Arkansas hold their primaries on Tuesday. It is election time in Dixie, however, and those two states have a monopoly on the joys of thrills which southern voters find in the great American game of politics.

Over in Mississippi a primary will be held August 26, although the democrats find Senator Pat Harrison without opposition to succeed himself and will send him back to Washington with a whoop! And although there is only one contest for a seat on the congressional delegation, a fine bit of enthusiasm has been generated. Much of it has to do with the possibilities of Governor Bilbo running for the senate in 1934 and voters can see him tightening up his lines in his off year primary with a contest against Senator Hubert Stephens in view.

Randall and Long.

Then in Louisiana the white-haired, typical southern planter, Joseph E. Randall, is engaged in a spirited contest with the impetuous young Governor Huey P. Long for the democratic nomination for the senate. One hears much of how Long received a German admiral in his green and gold pajamas and selected his B. V. D's as a costume in which to greet an American general, but with his backwoods drawl and his homely manner, Long is rallying an admittedly strong following despite heavy opposition from the press including all of the New Orleans newspapers.

South Carolina and Georgia have equally interesting and colorful contests only a little further in the offing. But perhaps of the greatest immediate interest is in the Alabama primary on Tuesday because of the strange situation which has developed.

The desertion of Al Smith for Herbert Hoover by Senator Heflin and numbers of his followers in 1928 is the real issue and the primary is to decide who will carry the banner of the anti-Heflin forces in November, the first time since 1890 that Alabama has had two candidates running for a senatorship in a general election.

"Stay Out." Heflin and Judge Hugh Locke, of Birmingham, who is going to run for governor as an independent and as Heflin's running mate in November, are telling the voters to "stay out of the primary" and pay no attention to any of the candidates who are running.

The candidates for the democratic senatorial nomination are John H. Bankhead, of Jasper, an attorney and member of one of Alabama's first families, and Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher.

Heflin has appealed to Thompson to "get out of the contest and let me handle John in November," but Thompson has evinced no intention of doing so.

Heflin-Locke speakers are stumping the state crying "Tammany, Rome and Russia," charging that the primary is illegal because of a ruling that those who voted for Hoover in 1928 may vote in the democratic primary but not as candidates; and telling the voters that Heflin and Locke are the real democratic candidates and others are just sinister influences within the party.

Six men are running for the democratic nomination for governor, with Judge B. M. Miller, of Camden; W. C. Davis, now lieutenant governor and friend of Governor Bibb Graves, and C. C. McCall, attorney general, making the most sensational campaigns.

Dennis Klan Support. Davis denies that he is a Ku Klux Klan candidate while McCall is denouncing the Klan and calls the Heflin-Locke faction the "thunder buggy boys." Miller has aimed most of his shafts at Governor Graves and Davis, charging Davis merely is trying to perpetuate the Graves' policies.

In Arkansas, Senator Joseph Robinson came home from Washington and Paris to find Thomas W. Campbell, Little Rock lawyer, opposing him for the democratic nomination and trying to pin a tag of "friend of the interests" upon him. But Robinson and his friends have met the attack firmly and today issued statements predicting the senator would carry every one of the state's 75 counties and roll up a majority of 100,000. Campbell headquarters were equally emphatic in their claims of success, but would not reduce their statements to figures.

Their candidate has traveled 7,000 miles within the state and made 200 speeches during the campaign.

HOOPER TEST IN NEBRASKA.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 10.—(P)—A possible test of Hoover administration strength in the "arm belt" overshadowed issues involved in Nebraska's senatorial primary Tuesday as the furiously waged campaign drew to a close tonight.

George W. Norris, who bolted Hoover for Al Smith two years ago, is being opposed by W. M. Stebbins, candidate of the regulars for the republican nomination and interest around by the contest has prompted

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

"A good dependent chaplain," Prandegast continued. "He bought the crew before they signed on. He got two of the warders and the second mate, and he'd get the captain himself if he thought him worth it...."

"We'll make the coats of these soldiers redder'n ever the tailor did. There's a brace of pistols for every mother's son of us, and we'll have the crew at our backs. You cut a hole and speak to your mate upon the left tonight and see if he's to be trusted."

My neighbor was a young fellow named Evans, but afterward he changed his name and is now a prosperous man in the south of England. Evans was ready enough to join up. From the beginning there was nothing to prevent us from taking possession of the ship. The crew were a set of ruffians, especially picked for the job....

The sham chaplain came into our cells to exhort us, carrying a black bag supposed to be full of tracts. By the third day we had each stowed at the foot of our beds a file, a brace of pistols, a pound of powder, and twenty slugs.

leaders to predict the earliest vote of record.

Norris through the campaign has bitterly denounced the tariff; assailed what he termed the "power trust" and criticized administration farm relief measures.

The conservatives, backing Stebbins charged Norris' support of Smith ostracized him from the republican ranks and pleaded for a return to a "two-party system."

The principal argument presented by Stebbins' supporters was contained in inquiries addressed to Norris, asking why the latter does not follow the leadership of the president.

To this, in effect, the Norris supporters have answered, "Why have senators, then?"

"The campaign was evinced by the filing for the republican senatorial nomination of George W. Norris, a grocer of Broken Bow, Neb."

Supporters of the former senator charged the filing was a "maneuver" to confuse the voters with statistics of names. The supreme court later disqualified the filing and the matter was referred to the senate campaign funds committee for investigation.

Little interest has been manifested in the other contests. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former senator, is being opposed for the democratic senatorial nomination by a woman, Dr. Jennie Mather Callfao, former national committee woman who bolted Governor Smith in the last presidential campaign and supported Hoover.

German Minister Attacks Poland

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(P)—A diplomatic incident between Germany and Poland was feared today, from an extremely outspoken speech by Gottfried Treviranus, reich minister of the occupied regions, on the subject of Germany's eastern frontiers.

Herr Treviranus, in the Germans' front of the bottom of their hearts for the cut-up Vistula regions, this unhealed wound in the eastern flank of Germany.

He told his audience, meeting in front of the reichstag to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the plebiscite in East and West Prussia, that they would remember "the iniquitous pressure put upon President Wilson to make him agree to the unnatural amputation of East Prussia."

Hand and Knee Derbyists Crawl Painfully to Goal

MALES REACH FINISH WITH GIRLS STILL ON ROAD

TEXARKANA, Ark., Aug. 10.—(P)—Gus Kennedy's red tail light waggled through the dusty dawn to victory today.

Blistered of hand and knee, Kennedy clumped across the oily flooring of the Lenz Discovery Well, just a week from the day he started on a 18-mile crawl, exacted as payment for a bet made that oil would not be discovered in the new oil field in which the Lenz well was drilled.

Still behind him and urging him on, J. B. Browne, his partner in his bad bet, signaled their arrival with a gusty sigh as he dropped the handles of a wheelbarrow, his constant reminder during the dusty 18-mile derby that wagers are not made to lose.

Several hours after their arrival, the second team of "shin dig" derbyists—who entered "just for fun"—crawled out of the dust and heat.

This pair—Clyde Ethridge, hand and knee entrant, and Jean Elam, barrow pusher—covered their hometown of Fouke with glory by crawling off nine miles during the night, the best lap of the week. They started only Wednesday night, confident that their crawling experience, earned in cotton patches, would result in defeat for Brown and Kennedy.

But somewhere back over the 18 dusty miles of highway, two fair contestants—one crawling and the other trundling a baby buggy—abled on to dispute the supremacy of man.

Slim little Miss Violette Grison hared her tender knees to the rocks and dust of competition, while her sister, Mrs. Edith Crowson, brought up the rear with her baby buggy. Believing in the equality of woman with man, the sisters, both about 21, took to the highway Thursday night. Their finish remained in doubt today.

So great has been the interest generated by what is probably the only derby of its kind, additional highway patrolmen were dispatched to south Arkansas last week to untangle the crowd of partisan supporters that choked the highway.

This resulted in the edict that tail lights must be donned by contestants and not until the dawn today were bobbing "riding lights" extinguished for good.

Prisoners Save Four From Death In Hudson River

OSSING, N. Y., Aug. 10.—(UN)—Four prisoners, confined in Sing Sing as unfit for free society, today rescued four persons whose rowboat had swamped in the Hudson river and who were in danger of drowning. Oddly enough one of those whose lives were saved was a police officer.

A few years ago prison authorities were rebuked in many quarters because they refused to permit a similar rescue in the case of two drowning youths. Today's decision that the saving of life was more important than the potential escape of a few prisoners was made by Alfred Molitor, sergeant of the guard.

Most of Sing Sing's 2,200 prisoners were in the yard when cries for help were heard from the four in the rowboat—J. D. Rossa, chief of police of the New York Central lines, who lives in Chappaqua; his wife, her brother, Alfred Graft, and his wife.

Keepers on the walls notified Molitor and he sent Irving Brown, Joseph Oates, Anthony Elano and David Weller—all short term prisoners who are members of the institutional fire department—to the rescue. Two leaped into the water and the other two, using hooks, helped to keep the boat from sinking until it could be hauled up and tied to a small dock. During the rescue keepers with rifles and machine guns, stood with their backs to the river and facing the other prisoners, fearful lest any try to escape during the excitement.

Ecuador Celebrates Independence Day

QUITO, Aug. 10.—(P)—Ecuador today observed the 121st anniversary of its independence.

Although the revolutionary government, set up August 10, 1809, establishing what was known as the "state of Quito" fell within a year and Spanish royalists regained control, Ecuador considers 1809 the year of its national birth.

General Simon Bolivar and Marshal Jose Antonio Suñer drove the royalists out forever in 1822 and Ecuador and Venezuela joined the confederacy known as the Republic of Colombia. The confederacy was dissolved in 1835, and the name "Republic of Ecuador" was adopted then.

LAMBETH CONFERENCE CLOSED BY AMERICAN

Bishop Perry Gives Final Address of Religious Gathering.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(P)—An American bishop, the Rt. Rev. James Dewolf Perry, today delivered the sermon at the closing of the seventh Lambeth conference in Westminster—the first time an American has been so honored in the history of the Lambeth meeting.

The conference opened July 5 and was attended by Episcopal churchmen from all over the world.

Dr. Perry, who is bishop of Rhode Island and presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in the United States, spoke on spiritual authority.

A colorful procession of bishops and archbishops marked the closing thanksgiving service. Led by the Archbishop of Canterbury, all the delegates gathered in the historic abbey cloisters and marched into the abbey through the great west door. The gorgeous ecclesiastical robes of the archbishops and their train bearers, in ceremonial attendance, furnished an impressive close to the work of the conference.

In the farewell sermon, Bishop Perry said the church is now reaching a degree of unity greater than has been known for centuries.

"The impression made by our Lord's first public utterance was of finality," he said. "Before the words that had been spoken could be comprehended, there was recognition of the voice which spoke as having authority, not as the scribbles. Authority was a matter not unfamiliar to those whom He addressed."

then, as always, were found in the sources of His doctrine; and the scribes of that every age have been engaged in verifying the spoken word with chapter and verse. The world has its own treasure of authorities and its own judgment to pronounce on those who contravene them.

"As it was at the beginning of the first century, so it is at the beginning of the 20th; the minds and consciences of men become confused among the voices of the scribes. Whether these voices are heard in the temple and the synagogue of Jerusalem and Galilee, or in the streets and universities of Europe and America, the result is the same. Under their spell, the spirit of man despairs of knowing even the things of a man.

"There is, however, another spirit in the human heart, born not of man but of God. It heeds when it hears the word of the prophet: 'Thus saith the Lord.' It believes and worships when it hears from One greater than the prophet the words: 'I say unto you.'

"What happened at the close of the sermon on the mount was what always happens when men pursue their quests beyond the sources to the single source of truth; when they turn from the authorities which are of the scribes to the authority which is of God.

"The authority which the world will heed and finally accept is that which proceeds from unity. The supreme reason for the need of reunion today is the same as that which Christ named in His prayer: 'That they all may be one in order that the world may believe.' The church is now reaching a degree of unity greater than has been known for centuries. When the spirit of unity is perfect the voice of authority will be complete."

"Sally." First National and Vitaphone production, made entirely in color, opens a two days' run at the Empire theatre, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street, today. Marilyn Miller, the original stage "Sally," is the star, and the queen of musical comedy is surrounded by an all-star cast which includes Alexander Gray, Joe E. Brown and Ford Sterling, with a legion of other players and chorus girls, ballet girls, show girls and chorus men galore.

The old familiar song hits of the stage have been augmented by new songs and dances written especially for the picture. A Vitaphone act with a sparkling comedy will complete the program.

Sills Is Back With Us In Paramount Picture

"Man Trouble," a Fox Movietone feature starring Dorothy Mackaill and Milton Sills. Fox Movietone news and a Walt Disney sound cartoon. On the stage, Fanchon and Marco's "Peasant" idea. The picture at 2:45, 5:15, 7:45 and 10:15 o'clock. The stage program at 2:15, 4:45, 7:15 and 9:45 o'clock.

After a rather lengthy recess, old Milt Sills is back with us in "Man Trouble." But what a different Milt. The squinting chap who, some seasons ago, became a familiar figure in farland as a hard-working, two-fisted hero has learned a lot of bad habits, but, of course, still has that old fine spirit beneath all his superficial wickedness (said minor wickedness including rum running, wholesale homicide and unprovoked assault and battery on more or less unoffending musicians). We couldn't shake off the impression that the old fellow has been going to too many movies, particularly Edmund Lowe's recent starring vehicles.

Well, anyway, our villain-hero is operating a night club as the action opens and takes enough time off from trying his patrons and plugging his enemies from "hick town" Detroit (we resent this allusion to our former habit) to fish a very, very despondent Dorothy Mackaill from the river.

Of course he has his own sordid ends in mind when he does this, it would seem, for no sooner is she dry and given a job warbling in his joint than he returns from a punitive expedition to Detroit and starts "insulting" her assiduously.

To escape the virile, but too enthusiastic, boss for a while, the singer goes on a blind junket with a newspaper feature writer up to Uncle Joe's farm for a real old-fashioned Christmas. (In passing, this newspaperman is a real clean fellow and we certainly are pleased to see that the movie folk have admitted there is one such.)

Of course old he-man Milt pursues and makes the girl run back to his den of iniquity to save the boy friend from an exciting ride. The h. f. refuses to be saved and ankles into the hated and feared Milt's hailiwick. He is saved when the chief of men mob double-crosses him and delivers him into the hands of his favorite Detroit enemies. He lives long enough to come back and give the radiant couple his blessing.

This effort is replete with hokum and not so original, but it could have been worse. Sills is alternately a pretty good actor and a redolent ham.

There is an excellent stage show, entitled "Town Topics." Outstanding performers include one Harry Downing, whose line of comedy met with warm response from the Saturday night audience, and a young man with the unusual name of Ben Dova, who has taken an evolved lamppost and turned it into a medium for extracting large "gobs of laughter."

Dorothy Norton is an acceptable singer and there is a dancer named Carlos Peterson, who does that Russian dancing like a native. Also, of course, those delectable Paramount Rockets and Lou Forbes, with his clever band and orchestra.

Adolph Goebel has another snappy organ program and the bill is completed with Paramount sound news and some short subjects that are fully up to the high standard set by this house.

James A. Perry Speaks Eight Times This Week

Eight speaking engagements during this week were announced Sunday for James A. Perry, candidate for governor, who will include one radio address in his itinerary. Virtually every section of the state will be reached by the chairman of the public service commission in his program, which was announced as follows:

Today during noon recess of the court at Chatham: Dalton at 4 o'clock this afternoon and at 8:30 o'clock tonight a radio address from Rome.

Tuesday there will be no addresses by Mr. Perry, but Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock he will speak at Toocoo; and at 8:30 o'clock that night at Clarksville. On Thursday night he will speak at Dublin, appearing at 8:30 o'clock; Friday afternoon at Savannah and Saturday afternoon at Valdosta.

They even try to claim that I blocked the refusal to help pass the Hardman-Carswell consolidation of departments bill in the last legislature; when I had no voice in it whatever. But the truth is that no self-respecting general assembly would have passed it, because in that bill Hardman, in his usual autocratic manner, provided that he should have the right to appoint all the department heads, instead of electing them by the people, and also gave himself the right to hire and fire these heads with or without cause. The Hardman-Carswell consolidation bill in effect set up a dictatorship and for this reason was rejected by the legislature. While I had no part in the rejection I heartily concur in the action of those patriotic legislators who refused to turn the government over lock, stock and barrel to Hardman and Carswell. If they cannot run the governor's end of it successfully what would they do if they had it all in their hands.

"Carswell, in his Sunday's statement, asks me to name the departments I propose to keep and says I have never done this. Well, that is typical of Carswell statesmanship. I made 138 speeches two years ago and named them in every speech this year; the press has carried them, but for my special benefit, here they are again: Agriculture, audits, conservation, corporations, education, elementary, finance, health and hygiene, highways, law, labor and industry, penal and corrective, state and treasury."

In addition to cutting down the number of departments, boards, bureaus, commissions and subdivisions of each of these 14 I also propose to reduce the number of employees, the salaries and expenses of employees in line with what they could earn in private enterprise.

"This reduction of departments and cutting down expenses within those departments kept will result in a saving of more than $1,000,000 per year."

Bodies of Farmer, Wife Found in Rude Grave

STOW, Mass., Aug. 10.—(P)—The bodies of William Stefanovic, a farmer, and his wife, missing since May, were discovered in a shallow grave in a woodlot near the farm by four youths today. Detective Edward P. O'Neill said it was unmistakably a double murder.

The youths were attracted to the spot by the barking of a hunting dog. The heel of a woman's shoe and a man's elbow were visible above the ground.

The bodies were disinterred in the presence of Assistant Attorney General Warren L. Bishop, of Middlesex county. Both were clothed and on the body of Stefanovic was a blood-stained hat and almost no ribs.

The disappearance of the Stefanovic couple attracted attention from state and county authorities this week. Joe Stefanovic, a farm hand employed by Stefanovic, had told neighbors the couple had gone to Chicago. Meanwhile, he took charge of the farm and disappeared a few days ago, taking with him $800 cash in rents and the proceeds from auctioned cattle.

Efforts To End Unemployment Begun by Agogas

For the purpose of invoking divine dispensation to alleviate what is characterized as "acute distress" in local unemployment conditions, a mass meeting has been called by the Agogas Bible class of the Baptist Tabernacle, to gather Tuesday night and endeavor to take steps to bring about a citywide improvement.

A resolution calling for the mass meeting was adopted Sunday and it is the object of officers of the class, headed by E. A. Richardson and Morgan Blake, to sound a rally of local Christians in an effort to stem the tide of unemployment and bring about whatever relief may be possible.

The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in Agoga hall and prayer will be offered "that God and our Saviour will use us to help our fellowmen in some practical way."

"Capable and middle-aged men and women who have worked steadily for years are out of employment," the resolution stated, "and have no way to turn. They are in despair and desperate. Men and women in comfortable circumstances no less than a few months ago are actually facing starvation today."

"Many of these probably scorned religion as long as they were prosperous. Now they are turning for help to the churches, Bible classes and religious people as a last resort. We should not hesitate a fraction of a second in accepting that challenge."

E. D. RIVERS DENIES HAMPERING HARDMAN

Carswell Charge Refuted as Candidate Flays Present Administration.

Before leaving for his week's speaking engagements in south Georgia this morning Senator E. D. Rivers, candidate for governor, Sunday issued the following statement from his headquarters:

"Two years ago I warned the people that re-electing Governor Hardman would result in the worst failure of the affairs of our state in the history of the present generation. He replied with the excuse that his first administration had failed because I blocked him in the senate."

"What I prophesied has come true. Not only has it been the worst failure in this generation, but the worst since the days of the carpetbagger regime. Schools closed, old soldiers unpaid, the insane uncared for, despite the fact that Hardman has had more money to spend than any governor in the history of the state."

"Now when I bring these things to the attention of the people, Carswell (turning true to Hardman form as a faithful proxy candidate should) says I am the cause of the Hardman second failure. Well, they might fool the people once, but they will not get away with it twice, because the people know I was not even a member of either branch of the last general assembly."

"They even try to claim that I blocked the refusal to help pass the Hardman-Carswell consolidation of departments bill in the last legislature; when I had no voice in it whatever. But the truth is that no self-respecting general assembly would have passed it, because in that bill Hardman, in his usual autocratic manner, provided that he should have the right to appoint all the department heads, instead of electing them by the people, and also gave himself the right to hire and fire these heads with or without cause. BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

PETER RABBIT DOUBTS HIS EYES.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Your eyes, although they be well schooled, Are not immune to being fooled. —Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit thinks his eyes are pretty good. Yes, sir, he thinks they are pretty good. He knows they are not as good as the eyes of some of the other little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, but he believes them good enough to have faith in. He knows that they do not compare with the eyes of such people as Redtail the Hawk and other members of the Hawk family. But when he sees a thing he is sure of what he sees.

So it happened that Peter was very much puzzled. He had been over to the Old Orchard, and while he was sitting near the old stone wall that is on the edge of the Old Orchard he saw Striped Chipmunk whisking along the old wall. Peter knew that somewhere down underneath Striped Chipmunk had a hole in the ground and that his home was there.

Peter had almost forgotten Striped Chipmunk was sitting half dreaming, when he caught just a glimpse of some one popping out from between the stones of the old wall and almost at once disappearing again. Peter's eyes flew wide open. Yes, sir, they flew wide open. He stared and stared and hoped that whoever had disappeared would reappear.

"Wait a minute, wait a minute!" said Peter.

"That wasn't Striped Chipmunk, but it was a Chipmunk," declared Peter. "It must have been a Chipmunk. It was just the shape of Striped Chipmunk, and it had a tail like Striped Chipmunk. But, unless it was Striped Chipmunk, it couldn't be. Chipmunks are not black. It must be that I was more asleep than I thought I was. Perhaps I was wholly asleep and dreamed it."

Just then Chatterer the Red Squirrel came whisking along the old stone wall. At once he saw Peter. Peter said, "Wait a minute, wait a minute!" said Peter. "How do you know and one else ever did?"

"Because Chipmunks are not black," declared Chatterer in his most decided way.

"Why shouldn't there be a Black Chipmunk as well as a white Red Squirrel?" demanded Peter. Chatterer didn't know just what to say. You see, he had once had a son who wore an all-white coat. It had happened only once, but that once did prove that a Red Squirrel could be white. "That's different," said Chatterer lamely. "White coats do happen once in a while."

"So do black coats happen once in a while," retorted Peter, who just then happened to remember that Reddy Fox had once had a son with a black coat.

Chatterer remembered at the same minute, and so he couldn't say a word of denial. Still, he wasn't ready to believe that Peter had seen a black Chipmunk. "Peter," said he, "you were dreaming. There may have been a Black Fox, for I remember now that Reddy Fox did have a black-coated son. And, now I think of it, I believe that I've heard that in some places there are black members of my cousin's family. Pappy Jack and Gray Squirrel. But I have never known of a black Chipmunk, and I don't believe you've seen one."

"Neither do I," said Peter. "I must have been mistaken."

SOLDIERS PATROL STREETS OF MARION

Scene of Lynchings Is Quiet as Bodies of Victims Are Returned.

MARION, Ind., Aug. 10.—(UN)—Military units guarding the negro district of Marion were doubled today with the arrival of the bodies of Tom Shipp and Abram Smith, negro men who were lynched last Thursday night after being taken from the county jail where they were held for slaying a white man and attacking his girl companion.

Only immediate relatives were allowed to view the bodies when they were returned to the Shipp and Smith homes from Marion. Most of the citizens of Marion, however, had seen the two negroes swinging from the same branch of a tree on the courthouse lawn Thursday night and Friday morning. The move to Marion was made after the bodies had been cut down in the interest of restoring order to the city after its orgy of race hatred.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets stopped everyone a block from the Shipp and Smith homes today. The mob victims will be given private funerals Monday and will be buried in Weaver, a negro settlement since the Civil War days, near Marion. Soldiers will remain on duty here until after the funerals.

Today negro women and children, many of the servants in Marion homes, were beginning to return to work. They fled to Weaver Thursday night during the height of the lynching.

The troops which came here from Camp Knox, Ky., at the request of Mayor Edwards, of Marion, probably will report back to their training quarters there on Tuesday, Colonel George W. Healey told the United Press.

Over the week-end the mob spirit was held in check by three powerful influences: 1. The presence of soldiers. 2. A campaign started by the newspapers. 3. The clergy, who had been requested by Mayor Edwards to devote part of their Sunday sermons to lectures against allowing race hatreds to break through the normal restraints of civilized society.

The newspapers reprinted comment from other Indiana papers condemning the action of the Marion mob, which seemed to be changing public sentiment. At first the lynchings had been condoned by some residents. The Marion press also is understood to be starting a campaign for the arrest and conviction of the mob leaders, 20 of whom are said to be known. Names of suspects will be submitted to the September grand jury. Hundreds of tourists swarmed into Marion today to view the scene of the lynching. State police worked overtime to keep traffic moving near the courthouse.

Six Men Burned As Boat Explodes

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 10.—(P)—Six men were burned, three of them seriously, when the gasoline tank of a 40-foot cabin cruiser exploded at a dock in Biscayne bay this morning. The boat was destroyed and the flames, which followed the explosion, were extinguished only after firemen submerged the wreckage. The injured are: D. L. Clark, owner of the boat; Richard F. Swift, W. B. Cadle, Abe Goldman, M. H. Presley and Albert Abbatichio. Hospital attaches said they would recover.

Christian Endeavor Missionaries March

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(P)—Missionary delegates of many nationalities to the world conference of the Christian Endeavor Society, which opened here last week, today proceeded in ten groups along the streets of Berlin singing sacred songs to the accompaniment of guitars.

Speeches in the different languages of the missionaries were delivered at important corners and were translated into German.

Most Protestant churches held special services for the visitors. These were followed by open-air meetings in public squares.

At a thanksgiving service in the convention hall, Pastor Ira Landrith, of Chicago, called on the delegates of 31 nationalities to pledge themselves to devote their lives to the cause of religion.

Soviet Gives America $40,500,000 Order

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(P)—The Amtorg Trading Corporation, American business representative of soviet Russia, announced today that orders for agricultural machinery and tractors totalling $40,500,000 have been placed in this country by M. Kalmanovich, soviet vice commissar for agriculture. Kalmanovich sailed from New York for Russia Friday.

Tractors made up about 85 per cent of the purchases to be used on soviet collective and state farms.

CRITICISM OF JURIES DEPLOYED BY JORDAN

Candidate for Judgeship Not in Sympathy With Woman's Body, He Declares.

Criticisms of the grand juries of Fulton county for alleged failure to indict officials of this county are to be deplored, James K. Jordan, candidate for a judgeship of the Fulton superior court bench, declared Sunday.

"Presentments or indictments for criminal offenses must be drawn in technical language," he said, "otherwise they will be worse than futile and it is for this purpose that grand juries are furnished prosecuting attorneys who frame indictments which are found to be true bills or not as the jury should determine."

"It is certain that the present grand jury and other juries since last November have endeavored to get at the facts touching the administration of county affairs but were deterred because other matters were pressed upon their attention."

"In a meeting of the Woman's League for Better Government held Saturday night an anonymous letter was read suggesting that the foreman of the present jury had electioneered to get himself made foreman. Such a flimsy charge is not worthy of consideration whatever and it is to be regretted that the newspapers have made mention of it. While I deeply appreciate the support of the ladies of this organization, I do not concur in any criticism or deprecatory remarks touching any one of the able and fearless jury members are, at a sacrifice to themselves, endeavoring to do their duty."

Mrs. Louise P. Morgan Passes in Heflin, Ala.

Mrs. Louise Perryman Morgan, widow of the late John P. Morgan, and mother of Lieutenant A. C. Morgan, of Fort McPherson, died Sunday at her home in Heflin, Ala., after a lingering illness. Mrs. Morgan was actively interested in educational progress in Alabama and in former years was a regular contributor to newspapers of Alabama on vital issues of the day.

Mrs. Morgan was descended from a distinguished line of ancestors, the names of many of whom were closely identified with the early colonial history of the nation.

Surviving her are six sons and two daughters. They are Frank P. Morgan, of Montgomery, Ala.; J. A. Morgan, of Heflin, Ala.; H. G. Morgan, of Lawton, Okla.; J. Ralph Morgan, of Birmingham, Ala.; Neal Morgan, of Heflin; Lieutenant A. C. Morgan, United States army; Miss Bessie Morgan, of Heflin, Ala., and Miss Roberta Morgan, of Birmingham, Ala.

Mrs. Morgan also is survived by two brothers, D. D. Perryman and H. A. Perryman, of Heflin, and three sisters, Mrs. J. R. Little, of this city, and Miss Harriet Perryman and Miss Ella Perryman, of Heflin, Ala.

Funeral services for Mrs. Morgan will be held from the M. E. church of Heflin, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Interment will be in the Heflin cemetery. Her six sons will act as pallbearers.

Graf Zeppelin Sails On Hundreth Cruise

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 10.—(P)—While all Germany was celebrating the eleventh anniversary of the republic's constitution today, the world-wandering Graf Zeppelin began touring the German skies on its one hundredth cruise.

The Graf took off for Darmstadt at 7:30 a. m. with 20 passengers, and with Captain Lehmann in command. Her return was set for late tomorrow.

It was September 18, 1925, that the Graf made her maiden flight. On completion of her present flight the Graf will have traveled an aggregate of 194,000 kilometers, about equivalent to five times around the equator.

TENNESSEE PRIMARY RESULT IS PROTESTED

Republican Charges Use of Money and Says He Won't Abide Decision.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Aug. 10.—(P)—Judge Sam W. Price, opponent of Representative B. Carroll Reece in the first Tennessee district republican primary Thursday in a statement issued late Saturday charged that votes for his opponent "were bought with an inexhaustible supply of money."

In the statement Judge Price said that "if the official count should show Mr. Reece nominated over me in the so-called primary, I shall not consider myself bound by the same."

Price, who is trailing Reece by 2,201 votes in the unofficial tabulation of Thursday's primary, said he would have a further statement after receiving the official returns. County election commissioners meet Monday to canvass the returns.

"The primary does not express the will of the republican party in the first congressional district," he said. "The method and manner of holding the primary was unfair, fraudulent, corrupt and violative of the first principles of the republican party and of common decency."

Price said election officials were "controlled by my opponents," and charged that "outside interests" furnished funds for his opponents. Two weeks before the primary was held, Representative Reece announced receipt of a letter indorsing his stand on the Muscle Shoals question, which was made the campaign's paramount issue. The letter represented Mr. Hoover as being opposed to government operation of Muscle Shoals. Reece, as chairman of the house subcommittee that rewrote the Norris bill in the last congress had been accused by Price of "selling out" his constituents.

Lindy Will Address Politics Institute

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 10.—(P)—Confirmation of a report that Colonel Charles Lindbergh plans to attend a session of the institute of politics here this week was given today by Edward P. Warner, chairman of the round table on "the political aspect of aerial navigation." Colonel Lindbergh is expected to arrive from North Haven, Maine, Tuesday morning to attend the general conference on "national air policies" which will be held by Mr. Warner, who was formerly assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics. Colonel Lindbergh is understood to be making a study of international air transportation and is keenly interested in the subject of Tuesday's conference. Mrs. Lindbergh is expected to attend with him.

Husband Had to Do Her Work

"When my baby was a month old, I took a heavy cold and after that I felt miserable. Could not lift anything. My husband had to help me with the housework. I was so weak I could not do a washing. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Kittington paper and I gave it a good trial. Before I had taken half a bottle, I found the difference. I do all my own work now and I have told others how much this medicine helped me."—Mrs. Alice Bassett, Cadogan, Pennsylvania.

gress of Parents and Teachers well under way under the new administration and found the president, Mrs. B. H. Hankinson, busy engaged in perfecting plans which she hopes to carry through the next two years. Seated at a large new mahogany desk, a gift of her husband as a contribution toward comfort and efficiency in the state office, Mrs. Hankinson spoke of her ambition for the congress and discussed some of the things that she thought would add strength and give progress to the work. A few of the projects that she thinks would be of outstanding benefit to the state work is the continuation of organizing councils in towns and cities, where there are three or more associations; and in counties where there are five or more; every pre-school group in the state functioning as an association and paying per capita dues to the state and national organization; a more thorough understanding of the standards of excellence at the beginning of the year. Councils add to the efficiency and strength of the organization by co-ordinating and helping to unify the work, they are guiding bodies only, having no legislative power over the locals. Where there is a council functioning properly there is a more thorough understanding and co-ordinating of the work.

Pre-School Value.
The value of pre-school groups functioning as an association affiliated with state and national, is far-reaching in effect, only through affiliation is it possible to obtain a correct record of the work and learn the real value of what is being done for the pre-school children in Georgia by the Parent-Teacher organization, and only when the value of the work is understood will it prove an inspiration to the associations not doing that type of work to go and do likewise. The standards of excellence is the yard stick by which the progress of the organization is measured and some of the awards made, a thorough understanding of them at the beginning of the year will avoid much disappointment and confusion at the close of the year. The first fall meeting of an association calls for one point on the standards, there cannot be any "making up" later on this particular point, so know the standards.

The roster of the state board for 1936-1937 show several names new to that body, the possession of each having a record of splendid achievement in locals, councils and districts, making them well qualified to serve the state effectively. The following department chairmen were elected at the midsummer board meeting and are given with the department heads: Organization, Mrs. W. F. Sessions, McRae, director and second vice president; Mrs. Fred Wessels, Savannah, standards of excellence; Mrs. John McDavid, Columbus, programs and special days; Mrs. J. P. W. SON OF THE GODS

INSTALLMENT III.

"Our party has blown up," Wade began as casually as might be. "Mabel has got something the matter with her and wants to go home."

Sam turned from his patient observation of the dancers and said politely: "I'm sorry. Can anything be done?"

There were times when Sam Lee's college mates argued that he looked not at all Chinese, and again times when they were not so positive about it. At this moment, however, there could be no doubt as to what he was: Spud and Kicker saw an Oriental facing them.

"Would she like to leave at once?" Sam inquired.

Kicker made a hopeless gesture. "At once, or sooner! And they want me to call a taxi."

"Too much air in that open car," Spud explained desperately. "It's—neuralgia, or toothache, or something. Grabbed her just like—that! At least—"

"Would you mind—?" Wade, in spite of his case-hardened nerve, hesitated, stammered. "Could I ever, borrow a ten spot until the first? I'll pay it back, this time. Honest!"

Sam smiled and took a new banknote from his billfold. He always carried new money, as his friends had learned. "If she's suffering I'll ask you to say good night for me and express my regrets. You fellows must see them safely home, of course."

"This is mighty decent of you, Sam."

"You're a prince!" Both youths were greatly relieved. "Too bad our party was a bust, but—we'll see you tomorrow."

As they crossed the lobby Kicker breathed to his friend, Gosh, Spud! "I feel as if I'd stamped on a baby's finger."

A moment later they and the three girls passed out into the night. Sam explained to the café proprietor that he would not require that table for six after all and for a while he continued to look on at the dancers. Outwardly he was untroubled, his face wore a faint smile, his eyes were stony; inwardly he boiled. In an effort to retain his self-control he repeated in a sort of panic: "The superior man can find himself in no situation in which he is not master of himself."

"Noble natures are calm and content." "The lowest order of men are vicious in spite of instruction."

In moments like this he had learned to console himself, to seek refuge in the benign philosophy of the Orient. It had been a hard lesson: it was difficult to swallow abstractions, for he was young and a lively spirit blazed within him. He belonged to a people who have cultivated restraint and forbearance as virtues, nevertheless he was in revolt at this moment.

He had supposed, of course, when Gorman invited him to come out and assured him that everything was "all right," that the girls knew who and what he was. Otherwise he would not have subjected himself to the risk of humiliation. Who was the honor man among 800 sophomores at Eastern University? A despised Chinese! To whom did they look up in the lecture room? To whom did they come for help outside of class hours? To Sam Lee! . . . The gods were laughing. He, too, should laugh, but there was no laughter in him.

He stopped the blonde cigar girl as she passed him and bought a package of cigarettes, paying double price for them. Disdainfully he left the change from his dollar bill on her tray. She dimpled and eyed him encouragingly. A white girl! When the coat-room attendant took his check Sam dropped a coin into his hand much as he would have dropped it into the dirty paw of a beggar. The man was delighted.

There was a film over Sam Lee's eyes, a derisive smile was on his lips as he walked out of the café and climbed into his $15,000 car.

"Reckless is a plant that bears nothing but misery," he told himself. A moment later he repeated a favorite proverb of his father's, "A wise prince never departs from gravity and repose."

Slowly he drove back towards the city, lost in meditative contemplation of the beauties of the night.

Sam Lee's experience at the Bird Cage was not the first of its kind; he was by way of becoming accustomed to humiliations of one sort or another. He had come to Eastern expecting to find a tolerance as broad as the ocean. Among his people the quest of knowledge is considered the most honorable of pursuits and respectful homage is paid to the humblest of students even by the high-born and the wealthy. In the Chinese mind intellect has dignity second only to old age. But he had found it to be quite different with Americans.

Sam's contacts in the classroom were pleasant and stimulating; an admirable democracy obtained there. It didn't extend far outside of those limits, however, and he wondered why.

He had been taught to envision the world of knowledge as a real democracy which embraced every race, every creed and every color. Such at least was the picture that had been painted by his tutors.

In reality it was anything but that; he had found it to be a stony and inhospitable place, a bewildering confusion of compounds with race walled off from race and creed from creed.

In Sam's case it did not appear to make the slightest difference that he was American-born, that he had never seen and probably never would see the land of his fathers, or that he had a "white mind," his virtues and his accomplishments were considered only skin deep.

This phenomenon would have been more readily comprehensible had Sam conducted himself like the other Chinese scholars who lived at the House of Nations along with the hundred or more students of foreign birth. They liked the whites no better than the whites liked them. But when Sam it was otherwise.

For instance, he served diligently on class committees, a thankless and a profitless task; he wrote for the college paper, he subscribed time and money to every worthy cause.

More than one fellow he coached in those subjects in which he himself stood highest and there were a number of boys, like Gorman and Wade—they called themselves men, of course—who shamefully abused his generosity in money matters. He had even entered into American sports and had earned a place on the varsity tennis team.

Tonight as he drove homeward it seemed to him that he was the loneliest young man in the whole world and he took a melancholy satisfaction out of indulging in self-pity. He had been attracted by Alice Hart, no denying it. For an hour, hand in hand with her he had trod the loveliest path. Gates had opened, he had glimpsed enchanted gardens, then they had slammed shut in his face. Race prejudice again!

Once before he had suffered a similar hurt. That was soon after his arrival at Eastern. He had attended a social gathering and the memory of it still fastened in his mind. He had never gone to another. Following that humiliating experience he had seriously considered quitting college and going home, home to his father's high-perched house that overlooked the roofs of Chinatown.

Lee Ying, his honorable parent, lived in state on the roof of the newest, the tallest, the finest business building in that quarter of New York. A modern fireproof structure of steel and terra cotta it was; and the merchant's home itself was a peaceful refuge, rich in beauty and full of pleasures. The rooms were airy and spacious and they housed many treasures. There was a roof garden with shrubs and trees and flowers and a tinkling fountain looking down upon narrow Mott and Pell and Doyers streets with their swarms of yellow men and children.

The home reflected the lofty dignity, the benign calm of its distinguished owner. But the elder Lee was a sage and a philosopher; he was by nature and by training incapable of understanding resentment at harsh treatment, and Sam very well knew it. Lee Ying would have smiled at such a childish weakness and counseled his boy to rise above it; or told him that adversity is necessary to the development of a man's virtue.

Decatur Barons Workout Today Before Heading for Tourney

'BITSY' GRAT BEATS VINES IN HARD MATCH

Far out every principal thoroughfare are parked the cars of those playing hooch golf these nights.

If one gets behind a street car on Peachtree he had best get aboard; he never can get past. The sun-dogger golfers have all the gutters filled with their cars.

The old carefree days of driving all over Spring street are gone since the bedtime putters descended upon us.

Players leaving the trick courses and those just arriving cross the streets in groups. One must slow down to 35 miles an hour to keep from making a case of manslaughter-in-one.

Night football is still one of Chip Robert's little jokes that he uses now and then to scare some of his newspaper friends.

R. J. Spiller stands firm as Gibraltar and twice as big between Atlantas and night baseball.

Night polo, auto racing, dog racing, ice hockey, tennis are just items in the paper.

But this dusk-to-dawn non-stop putting business is becoming a serious matter. Every street is an alley with cars parked and double parked. It seems the style now to drive up, double park and discuss scores with friends.

Sometimes one almost regrets that Thomas A. Edison was not a moron.

BACK TO GOLF.

Be that as it may, French tailors have come out with a one-piece golf suit.

It consists of shirt and knickers made in one like overalls.

If that costume ever becomes general the driver of this vehicle of expression may resume the game.

The real reason I gave it up is I just never could keep my shirt-tail from crawling out.

A NEW SUMMARY ON JONES.

In The Brunswick Pilot is a delightful chatty column written by a philosopher who styles himself "The Pilot." He writes charmingly of a visit to St. Simons the other day when Bobby Jones was week-ending there and gives a fresh estimate of him as a golfer.

"The Pilot" writes:

"And what I saw of Bobby convinces me of the following facts:

"His ability as a golfer does not lie so much in being able to keep out of traps, but in getting out of them after he once gets in.

"He does not waste all his strength and stamina in wagging his club before hitting the ball.

"He is not as handsome as the rotogravure sections report.

"His form reminds me very much of the way I used to play golf when I was his age.

"He concedes putts that would require two strokes by an average golfer.

"If he ever started slicing or hooking his drives the Red Cross would have to be called on to take care of the casualties.

"He can hit a ball straight with a putter than you can with a pool cue."

PROGRESS IN WRESTLING.

Wrestlers are progressive businessmen. They eternally are making progress in their trade of pulling ligaments to the breaking point and suffering loudly for edification of folks who paid to see them.

From year to year they invent new holds, new methods of punishment, new technique in registering agony.

The other night your correspondent witnessed a match between two tough eggs. They were Henry Weber's roughest pachyderms, who were known as artists in legalized mayhem. Their line was serving wrestling in its roughest form.

In the course of mauling each other the two men brought into use a brand-new variety of levers, grips and methods of torture. Your correspondent had not seen a rough match since Dick Davis court to make them howl with rage at the auditorium during the reign of John Contos. Hence he was in a position to judge the progress that had been made in the art.

NEW GRIPS YEARLY.

Even the straight wrestlers in the championship class annually develop new grips—Japanese tricks, flying tackles, complicated arm and head scissors holds and a dozen other varieties.

Boxing has been on the sporting stage for nearly 40 years and not a new punch has been given to the sport by the greatest exponents. The solar plexus blow, the corkscrew punch, the Mary Ann, the buckshot blow—all of them are inventions of writers. The blows themselves are the same. Jim Corbett had every ring trick modern champions have shown.

Wrestlers put a lot of study into their business; they sense the value of showmanship. That is why mat spectacles continue to do steady business in spite of adverse propaganda.

Paul Harper Wrestles Charley Fox Tonight

Paul Harper, the wrestling fool from Texas, hopes to make Charley Fox, the Cleveland Copper, one of the stepping stones to a title match this winter when they meet in the ring at Spiller field tonight.

Harper, who is a college product from the wide open spaces, is the youngest of new crop of wrestlers. He has already advanced to the forefront of the youngsters, ranking along with Jim McMillin in ability.

He is in the greatest shape of his career this summer and plans to get a running start for the fall campaign.

If he takes Charley Fox here, Matchmaker Henry Weber will give him another shot.

There is no assurance that he will defeat the Cleveland Copper because Fox is one of the ring's tough boys. He has skill and power.

"I can take any of these college boys," said the tough boy from Ohio. "If we all afford to get their hair mussed but I'll muss it plenty. I'm likely to spank one of these days and send him home to mama."

Atlanta mat fans will be lined up behind Harper. He is one of the cleanest cut young fellows in the game and a real wrestler. If Charley Fox beats him, he will make himself even more unpopular than ever.

BARONS PLAN FINAL DRILL BEFORE TRIP

Sandlot Champions Excited Over Going to Palatka Eliminations.

By Ralph McGill.

Decatur's Barons, over-lords of the sandlot teams of Georgia, will take a workout today to see if their bats are still full of base hits.

The Barons are already keyed to a high pitch. They can hardly believe that one of the goals they set out for last spring has been reached—the state title and a trip to Palatka, Fla., for the regional tournament.

They can hardly believe that this workout today is next to the last they'll have at home before getting on that Pullman car that is to be Palatka bound.

It's going to be harder to sleep in at least 13 Decatur homes tonight. Because tomorrow night, if one can really believe it, the 13 team members are going to leave. Tomorrow night!

LONG GO.

It seems years and years ago last spring that the Barons began work and started play. There are dozens of teams playing and just one could come through. Just one. The Barons decided it might as well be they as any others.

That they lasted through is a tribute to their play, but it is an equally fine tribute to their heartiness and the "let it be" adherence to the rules of the American Legion's baseball committee.

The Barons had no ineligible players to mar their record. They weathered the close scrutiny of officials and they played winning baseball because their spirit was right.

The Barons will pay close attention to their bats. They were the Yankees of the sandlot league. They just naturally overpowered that baseball with their bats.

HAD PUNCH.

The Barons carried that punch into the state tournament, coming from behind to win. They have a lot of confidence in their hitting and they are willing to spot their opponents a run or so and call the odds even.

The Barons ask, "What's a run or two? Go on up there and hit that baseball. We'll knock in four or five."

And they do. They will work out today. They may knock a few because, after all, they are just boys. And having tonight they entrain for Palatka, Fla. Of course Georgia is the greatest state in the Union and of course Decatur is the finest little town, but Florida must be exciting.

FANS RALLY.

And so the ambassadors for Georgia in the great national sandlot tournament are taking their job seriously and with great enthusiasm. Palatka will know they are there.

Decatur is lining up behind them. Excited fathers and mothers are looking over the family budgets to see if they can't go along and see "the boys" play.

To be one of the Barons in Decatur now is to be on the pinnacle of fame. They are fine boys and the town knows it. And having tonight the fruits of fame the Barons are sharpening up their batting eyes. They are determined that they will come back, like the team of old, with their shields on them. If they should lose there would be a lot of broken hearts in Decatur. But the Barons aren't thinking about losing.

DRAW THURSDAY.

They plan to knock in enough runs to win no matter what the odds. The "others" in the regional tournament at Palatka happened to be Tampa, St. Petersburg, Jacksonville, Miami and Tallahassee. The Barons will arrive there on Wednesday. Play begins on Thursday.

The Harold Byrd Legion post is behind the Barons. Hugh Burgess, athletic officer, is the man who is most responsible for the team. O. L. Amisler has coached the team in the fine points of the game. They are a dozen or more citizens of Decatur will board the train with the team Tuesday night.

T. J. Stewart, division passenger agent of the Central of Georgia, will accompany the team. Reservations, at a very attractive rate may be had today and tomorrow.

TEAM MEMBERS.

The team members making the trip are: Buster Brown, catcher; John McKinley and Lefty Burgess, pitchers; Adrian Kimbrough, Al Woodruff, John Rainey, Louis Shure, Martin Partridge, Grady Moore, Jake Gardner, Lloyd Black, Julius Lennard and Robert Johnson.

They have already been entertained by the Civitan Club of Decatur and by the Legion post. If they win at Palatka there is no telling what will be their fate.

Victory at Palatka means they will go to the state divisional tournament at Charlottesville, Va.

Hines Beats Bryan For Kentucky Title

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 10.—(P) Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., defeated Lefty Brown, Chattanooga, Tenn., 6-1, 6-4, 7-5, in the final singles match of the Kentucky state tennis tournament here today.

Hines and Judge Beaver, Gainesville, Ga., defeated Julius Szagalsky, Indianapolis, and George O'Connell, Chicago, 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2 for the Kentucky doubles championship.

BARNES WINS.

COVINGTON, Ky., Aug. 10.—(P) Bruce Barnes won the men's singles title in the Ohio valley tennis championships, defeating Robert Sellers, of San Francisco, here today, 6-0, 6-1, 6-3.

BARNE BEATS CRACKERS, 4-3; GIVES UP 3 HITS

Red Oldham Weakens in Last Two Frames To Lose Lead.

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 10.—Continuing the series of old-fashioned pitching which Dixie Davis and Andy Messenger started down in Atlanta Friday, Billy Barne and a pair of Crackers hurlers locked up in a tasty bit of chunking out at Ring stadium today, the Lookouts winning in the last half of the ninth, 4 to 3.

Chambers and Oldham did the moundwork for Johnny Dobbs while the league's best pitcher was turning in his second best game of the year. The way the trio toiled from the slab brought joy to the hearts of veteran fans, who breath a tear for the boys of the bout and the sacrifice.

Billy Barne pitched a three-hit game to turn down the Crackers, two of the blows being fluke affairs which would be fluke the majority of the time, but the wonder of it is that it took a desperate rally in the eighth to knot the count and another in the ninth before the Lookouts were retained winners.

It was Barne's eighteenth victory.

Mule Shirley got a double in the second. It was barely inside the first base line and went skipping by Roy Grimes. I like Appling walked.

Then came Bobby Lamotte, with a bright new bat, all white and everything. Bobby danced and did tricks like a child with a new toy. Blam, he hooked a fast one toward left and Frank Walker started running.

The ball didn't look like it would go far when it started. But it gradually rose like a good shot off the tee, and finally came to rest in the old stands. That was three runs. And many times during the remainder of the game that trio of markers looked like an obstacle which could not possibly be overcome.

Outside of the second, Barne faced only three men in each of the other eight innings. Polvogt rolled, I am easy one to Dashiell in the eighth. Grimes had the ball in plenty of time. But Buck Campbell said Grimes didn't put his foot on the bag and Toy got an error for not knowing where to house his dogs. Oldham, next up, hit into a double play.

FIRST RUN.

Two innings into the Lookouts went out to inning. Johnny Jones led the third with a triple and scored on Kenna's sacrifice fly. With one down in the fourth Ray Treadaway tripled to right. Jimmy misjudged the ball and let it bounce over his head. He came in on Grimes' infield out.

Time after time between that and the eighth frame the Lookouts had scoring chances but they always muffed them. Chambers walked three, filling the bases with one out in the fifth, but Bates hit into a double play. He walked the first man in the sixth and fans saw a pitcher removed who had given up two hits in five innings.

Red Oldham came in after Chambers had walked. Horn, Treadaway sacrificed and Grimes singled, sending Horn to third. But Oldham struck out Walker and Dashiell, coming out of another hole.

Horn walked in the eighth, went to third on Bates' hit. The only man who made a lightning peg home, cutting Horn down. Looked like the last chance was gone. Then Frank Walker doubled to left, scoring Treadaway with the tying run.

AND THE LAST.

Jones, struck up in ninth, went out. Kenna walked and Barne laid one down and beat it out. Bates singled to center and Kenna came in with the winning run. Barne struck out following the game President Joe Engel announced the signing of George Cunningham, a star hurler of the 1915 Lookouts.

George was quite a chunker in his day. He has been going great in amateur circles here this year.

A big Sunday crowd saw the game and the Bill Rogers crowd. When he walked out on the field. The recent attempt to oust him has swung sentiment in his favor.

ILLY BAYNE IS MOUND ACE

While Billy Bayne is the chief hope of the Lookout strong box, Cliff Bolton and Ray Treadaway will hardly escape the draft even if they are not picked.

They are not sold. Treadaway is an excellent third-baseman. He was played out of his position until Gooch was disposed of. Since his return to the third corner Treadaway has gone along in his accustomed style. Bolton is a young catcher. The Crackers have Luke Appling, who will be sold. Si Rosenthal, outfielder, and Andy Messenger will also be sold if possible because the Crack-owners have little hope of keeping him out of the draft.

Use of Return Envelopes Shows Material Increase

A decided trend to the use of return envelopes is noticeable among business concerns seeking direct response through the mail, according to S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, who recently made a survey to determine current business practice along these lines.

"The return envelope," Mr. Guthman said, "is coming in for greater use due to several factors. First, it presents a more dignified form of mailing. In itself, it conveys a better impression and is a stronger invitation to the recipient to reply. Second, the advertising value of the envelope is better. It can be made up in a wide variety of colored envelopes and kraft papers, and because it is more conspicuous, has greater appeal."

The Atlanta Envelope Company constantly endeavors to create more effective use of envelopes for its customers. In the big plant on Stewart avenue, with its daily capacity of more than three-quarters of a million envelopes, many ingenious uses for envelopes have been developed. It is part of the service of the Atlanta Envelope Company to work with its customers and render a personal service in the use of the product. A large commercial printing plant with facilities for complete printing work is operated as a part of the service to produce printed forms and other printed matter frequently needed in conjunction with commercial envelopes.

R-100 Makes Tour Of Canadian Cities

MONTREAL, Aug. 10.—(UN)—Free from its mooring at the first time since completing the trans-oceanic flight from England, the British dirigible R-100 left St. Hubert airport at 6 p. m. tonight for a cruise that will take it over Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and other Canadian cities.

The airship was scheduled to return to the airport tomorrow. The homeward flight probably will begin within a week.

Soon after the R-100 left its mooring at St. Hubert, a severe rainstorm broke briefly over this part of Quebec but the dirigible's progress was unhindered. The crowds that had turned out to watch the flight received a drenching.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 10.—(UN)—The R-100, England's huge dirigible, flew to the Canadian States border near Rockland, 24 miles west of Rouses Point, at 6 p. m. today. The ship, coming from a south-westerly direction, halted its course for a few minutes and then turned toward the northeast and Montreal.

U. S. FINDS NEW HOPE OF FREE BRITISH VISAS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—After months of unsuccessful efforts to secure an agreement with Great Britain for waiver or reduction of costs of passport visas, the state department has found a bargaining point which it hopes will eventually lead to a reciprocal visa arrangement.

With many thousands of Americans going abroad annually, the department has successfully negotiated agreements with many of the principal European countries for a waiver of visas or a reduction of the fee which American travelers pay. Since the fee of $10 in circus presentations of "days of wild west" if the bureau of Indian affairs can prevent it.

Commissioner Rhoads has written out a proposal that "it is our purpose to encourage the reciprocity of the average Indian to participate in circus, vaudeville, wild west shows and similar enterprises, and in lieu thereof, to direct him toward a more dignified, and more permanent means of livelihood."

A new point upon which negotiations for a modified reciprocal agreement can be based was furnished the state department by the British themselves in a formal note asking a group visa for 18 members of the British legion and two servants who will attend the annual conference of the Federation Interallied Des Anciens Combattants in Washington next month. In addition to asking for group visa, the British government requested waiver of the rule that each applicant for a visa must appear personally before an American consul.

The state department in reply politely but firmly declined the request unless the British would enter into a reciprocal visa agreement for ex-servicemen. Ignoring the state department's urging for such an agreement, the British government in a second note last week pointed out instances under which a precedent had been set by the department in granting previously visas under a partial group system.

In its most recent note, which has just been handed Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, the department has again emphatically declined the request unless the British will enter into a reciprocal agreement. The British request for the waiver of appearance at a consulate was made on the grounds that the legionnaires were scattered over all parts of the United Kingdom. The department in refusing this request pointed out that the American government maintains 16 consulates in the United Kingdom.

CHECK PAYING URGED TO LESSEN ROBBERIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Payment of wages by check is recommended by a special committee of the national crime commission as the most logical solution to the pay roll hold-up problem.

"Of all suggestions for the improvement of the crime problem in the United States," the committee's report announced today, "the most constructive as well as the one most likely to gain wide acceptance is that which proposes to cut off crime at its source; that is, to prevent it."

The report then goes on to point out that pay-roll banditry is one of the most serious professional crimes in the country, available records showing that during 1929 the monetary loss was several million dollars, and that during the first six months of the year 19 persons were killed and 32 injured in pay-roll holdups.

"It is clear," the report said, "that a workable system of payment by check is the most efficient, economical and safe method of disbursing money to employees."

There are only two states—Maryland and Missouri—which prohibit such a practice, although several other states have qualifying laws, most of which prohibit such payment if the employer is a member of a labor union. The attitude of labor has changed in the last ten years, the committee found, and if the checks are simplified and made easily negotiable it believes the opposition would be small.

One of two of the original committee of 19 disagreed with the findings. Professor Raymond C. Moley, of Columbia University, said in a letter to the other members, and only 14 names were signed to the report.

These included: E. L. Rossiter, treasurer, New York Central; T. R. Clark, treasurer of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Washington, D. C.; A. S. Van Benthuysen, assistant treasurer, New York World; George L. Radcliffe, Fidelity and Deposit Company, Baltimore; Grover Whalen, former New York police commissioner; Major Richard Sylvester, president, International Police Chiefs' Association, Wilmington, Del.; John L. Conover, auditor, Public Service Company of New Jersey, Newark; Guy A. Thompson, attorney, St. Louis; Charles E. Fox, former district attorney, Philadelphia; W. C. Cosman, assistant treasurer, Northeast Electric Company, Rochester, N. Y.; Byron A. Jones, treasurer, Sals Textile Company, Bridgeport, Conn.; E. W. McCullough, manager, department of manufacture, Washington, D. C.; and Walden Newcomer, chairman, board of directors, Baltimore Trust Company, Baltimore.

Yacht Guests Escape As Cook Dies in Blast

BALTIMORE, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The negro cook of the yacht Primrose III was drowned last night as fire following two explosions burned the yacht to the water's edge. The owner and two guests escaped in swimming suits, picked up by the tug Larnie B. Shaw and brought to Baltimore. The explosions and fire occurred about 10:15, a quarter of a mile northwest of Bloody Point Light. The party was en route from Gibson Island to St. Michaels.

L. S. Carter, 35, president of the investment banking house of L. S. Carter & Co. of Baltimore and New York, the owner, was in command of the craft. His guests were John L. Boatright, of Baltimore, an employee of the firm, and a young woman from Washington. The negro was Harvey Long, 28, who was also Mr. Carter's chauffeur and servant. As the explosions shook the craft, Mr. Carter grabbed a life preserver and wrapped it about the young woman, who was unable to swim, and told her to jump. The three men took to the water and freed the boat tender. The negro sank before he could reach the smaller boat and Mr. Carter expressed the opinion he had been overcome by the explosion.

One Escaped Prisoner Returned to Stockade

One of a quartet of prisoners who escaped Saturday night from the city stockade was arrested Sunday afternoon when Policemen Hood and Glover took C. A. Turner into custody on Piccadilly.

Other members of the fugitive party still at large were Paul McBrayer, George Relford and W. P. Rush. McBrayer was serving a sentence for drunk and disorderly conduct, as was Turner, while Relford and Rush were serving sentences for driving automobiles while intoxicated.

Plane Crash Bodies Recovered by Diver

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A deep sea diver today recovered the bodies of the two girl passengers and pilot of an airplane that plunged through a gigantic steel tank and sank in the waters underneath in one of the most unusual accidents in aviation history.

The victims were identified as Mary Laws, 25, a bank employee; her sister, Eugenia Laws, 22, a stenographer, and Orville Suchy, the pilot, who six weeks ago received his transport license.

Investigators believe the plane was struck by lightning yesterday afternoon. It maneuvered laboriously through the spiral that plunged through a gigantic steel tank and sank in the waters underneath in one of the most unusual accidents in aviation history.

The plane cleft through the metal plating of the roof and base of the huge tank filled with illuminating gas and sank in 40 feet of water in the underlying pit.

Police lines were formed to restrain the thousands of curious. A lighting system was hurriedly rigged and firemen cut holes to permit the diver to reach the wreckage.
